A Christmas tree illuminates the window. A bar cart, filled with bubbly, stands ready in the corner. Tasseled bags, in shades of brown and black, lay next to candlesticks. Wallets and coffee mugs top an antique dresser. You just want to buy the whole store - like so many chic, welcoming Cleveland stores owned by women. Retail is one of the best industries for female entrepreneurs nationwide. In 2012, women exclusively owned about 41 percent of small stores nationwide,There were 1 million of these mom-not-pop stores. Nearly 90 percent of the 9.9 million women-owned companies in the United States in 2012, though, hired no other workers. These female business owners are literally doing it themselves. At least in Cleveland, they have plenty of support from other female entrepreneurs. Women-owned-stores in Cleveland are not competitive, or catty, said Fount co-founder and co-creative director Jackie Wachter.These women recommend each other's stores to customers. They chat with each other about business problems and choose each other's brains for solutions. They gather and sell their fares at the Cleveland Flea, which serves as a networking hub for many of the female business owners, Wachter said. We are always blown away by how supportive women are of each other, Wachter, who co-founded Fount with her husband. If a person gets up, we can all stand up together. For example, Wachter leaned on Kim Crow and her Tremont boutique Evie Lou when shooting Fount's catalog last year. Evie Lou borrowed Fount clothes. I just think it's so incredible how many female entrepreneurs there are in Cleveland, said Kate Fortney Horne, owner of Lovely Paperie and Gifts, and Babycakes Children's Boutique in the Rocky River. Women come together and say look at this amazing thing that we do, we have to support each other and lift each other up and really let it be known that Cleveland supports women., a list of women-owned businesses throughout northeast Ohio, also works to connect female business owners.
